Johnson Definitely to Quit NRA and Join Baruch Again

WASHINGTON — General
Hugh Johnson has definitely fixed the date for his resignment.

He will await the reconvening of Congress, face the attacks—if any—that members of that body have been whispering about, and then step out. His old office with Barney Baruch, redecorated and refurnished, is all ready for his return.

Johnson will leave voluntarily. His relations with the President are now of the very best, in fact better than they have ever been. This is the result of a long private talk the two men had in New York a few weeks ago.

There was a recent occasion, however, when Johnson was ready to call "quits." The storm broke when the President turned the administration of the oil code over to Secretary Ickes.

Johnson had borne the brunt of the terrific struggle in writing the oil code. So when the President turned its administration over to another man, and placed on the Oil Planning Committee men who had fought Johnson in the code negotiations, he felt he had lost Roosevelt's confidence.

With characteristic bluntness he went to the White House, proffered his resignation.

The President wouldn't hear of it. He patted Johnson on the back, kidded him a little, insisted that he withdraw the resignation.

This is one reason why Roosevelt recently came out for prison sentences for NRA chiselers, is now 100 per cent behind the NRA.

Vanished Hero

The fate of General Italo Balbo, famous flier, recently killed by Washington, is one of the chief subjects of discussion in the Diplomatic Corps.

His name has disappeared from the Italian press as if by a mysterious order. Not only has his name vanished, but he makes the rarest appearances in public life.

When the French Government sent a Parliamentary Mission to Italy recently, Balbo was supposed to guide the members through the Italian Air Ministry. Two hours before the visit, a curt announcement stated that General Balbo was not appearing, but that his place would be taken by his assistant.

It is traditional that Mussolini never lets anyone crowd him for the limelight.

Won and Lost

Puddler Jim Davis is back from his court ordeal telling everyone why the NRA can't possibly go over.

"I know all about the NRA," says Jim. "I found out about it when I was running the box board industry for the members of the industry themselves. I made money for them too. But you can't make the small proprietary take wages off his own salary and put on another shipping clerk at $15 a week instead. The Blue Eagle is on its last gasp."

Jim has now been away from the Senate more than six months during which time he lost an appendix and won a lawsuit.

Secretary Roosevelt

It is not uncommon for the President to be "his own Secretary of State." F. D. R., however, has his eyes on the Treasury.

Secretary Woodin—one of Roosevelt's warmest friends is little more than a figure head. When in Washington he sets in on financial conferences, but he carries little weight.

This is due to two reasons: (1) Woodin is not a financier; (2) his health is precarious. The President does not want to burden him.
Under Secretary Dean Acheson,

AUGLAIZE-CO
ASKS TROOPS

Officials Fear Bandit Gang;
Men In Indiana Job Flee Toward Ohio.

LIMA, Oct. 24.—Close watch was settled over the western Ohio borderline today for signs of the gang of desperadoes, believed to be comprised of escaped convicts from the Michigan City, Ind., prison, which has been terrorizing Ohio and Indiana towns with a daring campaign of crime.

The latest escapade of the gunmen was staged last yesterday at Greencastle, Ind., when four desperadoes held up six employees and six customers of the Central National Bank & Trust Co., there, and escaped with $17,000 in cash and $40,000 in negotiable securities.

Reports from Greencastle stated that the bandits fled eastward in an automobile with an Ohio license plate.

WATCH BORDERS

The close watch was held over the western borderline of the state in the belief that the desperadoes may be planning to switch their activities of crime to Ohio.

The desperadoes who staged the bank holdup at Greencastle are believed to be members of the same gang that raided the Allen-co jail here last October 12 and freed John Dillinger, 30, a suspected bank robber, after shooting down and killing Sheriff Jess L.
Sarber in cold blood.

They are believed also to be the same desperadoes who staged a raid last week on a police station at Peru, Ind., and looted it of a complete arsenal of weapons.

One of the bandits who participated in the holdup of the Greencastle bank, it was reported, has been identified as Harry Pierpont, who has been named as the leader of the gang that invaded the Allen-co jail and liberated Dillinger at the cost of the life of Sheriff Sarber.

Fear was held by authorities that the desperadoes might try to storm the county jail at Wapa-koneta, near here in Auglaize-co, where Fred Pierpont, a brother of Joseph M. Bell, aged 65, cashier of the Second National bank and one of the city's most esteemed residents, succumbed at his home, 108 Northridge-rd., at 5:40 p. m.

Monday of pneumonia after a week's illness.

Mr. Bell worked at the bank last Monday but became ill during the evening. Double pneumonia developed causing his demise.

He had been cashier of the Second National bank since January, 1932, succeeding Cyrus Abernethy.
Mr. Bell had served as assistant cashier three years prior to the time he was named cashier.

He was a leader in the First Presbyterian church and was also a member of the Forest cemetery board.

CHILLICOTHE NATIVE

Joseph Miskimins Bell was born

Bell. His father was a Civil War veteran and a prominent Jackson-town farmer and stock raiser. His List Disclosed By Mrs. King;

By Group.

Mrs. Orion King, chairman of Historic Spots and Revolutionary Soldiers' Graves committee of the Pickaway Plains chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has been making a record of all persons buried in Pickawayco, who were born before 1820.
She has been assisted by other members of the chapter.

Graves of 32 Revolutionary soldiers have been found, 15 of which have been marked by the local chapter; 10 more graves will be marked yet this year.

One hundred and forty graves have been located in the county of men, or wives of men who could have been Revolutionary soldiers but of whom no service record has yet been found. Many of these graves have been plowed over and the headstones piled in fence corners or used for various purposes. As the years go on more and more of these old records will be lost. Realizing this fact the state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution has issued a request that all chapters catalogue graves in their respective counties. The work of the local chapter will be printed and a copy placed in the City library, one in the state library at Columbus and a third in the National D.
A. R. library at Washington D. C.

Fearful that some cemetery or private burial ground might be overlooked and its records lost, Mrs. King urges that anyone knowing of any burial ground not listed below to please communicate with her at 148 W.
High-st or phone 1264.

Hanley's Crew Next Foe For Buckeyes Of Ohio

Skippers Navy

Meet Hugh Q. Murray, captain of the Navy football squad. He plays left end, is 6 feet 1 1/2 and weighs 180. Murray is a native of Newnan, Ga., where he played on the high school team.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24.—Starting slowly but gaining power and ability with experience, Northwestern university's football team will invade Ohio stadium here Saturday for the Homecoming Day game against the Buckeyes.

Ohio State ended a football famine against Wildcats last year by winning, 20-6. This was the first victory a Willamson-coached Ohio State team had won from Dick Hanley, but it was a decisive one, taken when the Buckeyes were at their peak and Northwestern will be back for revenge.

Always a colorful crew, Northwestern will put a team on the field led by five regulars from the 1932 outfit, Illie Olson and Jackie Sullivan, backs; and Al Kaval, Bill Riley, and Ed Manske, line-men. With these men as a nucleus, Hanley has built a high-spirited team with youngsters just up from the great 1932 freshman squad.

RENTNER GONE

Northwestern has lost Ernest "Pug" Rentner through graduation and George Potter, regular quarterback, through ineligibility, but Ohio State is also without its two flashy half-backs of the 1932 campaign, Capt. Lew Hinchman and Bill Carroll.

Careened out of the Big Ten race by a surprisingly strong Iowa team, Northwestern is out now to spoil any chances the Buckeyes may have.

The Ohio State campus will be dressed as usual to greet the returning graduates. In fact, there will be more activity this week and more color to this game than any game here this year.

This will be the first Big Ten game in Columbus, this season, and for the first time, Ohio State fans will have the chance to see just what the gigantic Buckeye line can do against a major opponent in Ohio Stadium.

Assistant Coach Floyd Stahl brought back an impressive report on the Northwestern team which played Indiana Saturday afternoon. Especially commendable was the kicking of Ollie Olson, the big, blond fullback for the Wildcats.

Local Teachers Have Part In State Meet

Circleville and Pickaway-co schools will be represented at the Central Ohio Teachers meeting to be held in Dayton, Friday and Saturday.

Miss Marie Hamilton will preside as chairman of the special Education section.

Miss Florence Brown is secretary of the Junior high section. Speakers of prominence from all parts of the nation will address both the sectional and general meetings.

M. C. Warren, superintendent of the Pickaway-twp school, has been appointed a member of the Resolutions committee selected by J. G. Collicott, president of the association.

CHILD STRUCK BY BULLET CRITICAL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24.—A victim of an accidental shooting before his mother's eyes, 14-month-old James Towler remained in critical condition in Grant Hospital here today.

The child was struck while sitting in a kiddie car by a charge fired when a gun went off accidentally in the hands of a neighbor, G. E. Robinson. With a friend, Robinson had just returned from a hunting trip and was cleaning his gun.

The child's mother, Mrs. James Towler, standing within two feet of the baby, was not struck.

Ease Pain Now In Few Minutes

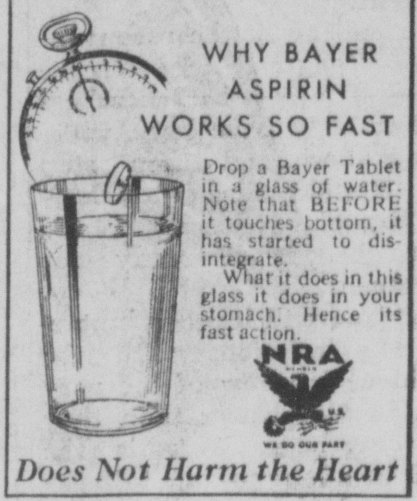

A Discovery That's Bringing Fast Relief To Millions

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

These results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

Get the Facts! Our Engineers Will Furnish Reliable Information On Your Heating Problems—Without Charge

Which Uses of Gas Best Suit Your Heating Needs?

Heating engineers have found that gas excels in every point on which a fuel is graded. Also, they find that it costs no more than other methods of heating, all costs considered. What, then, are the uses of gas heat which best suit your needs?

Automatically-Controlled Gas Heat From Your Present Furnace

There is no need to feel "tied down" to your investment in an old-styled furnace. Install Janitrol—the gas-fired, automatically-controlled heating unit—and enjoy the full advantages of a gas furnace. It will mean a clean home, even temperatures and no furnace tending in the future. Attractive terms will fit your budget.

Gas Circulating Heater

Perhaps your home has no basement for a central heating plant, or you may have a room or two that are not reached by the furnace. A Moore's gas circulating heater provides a plentiful amount of clean heat, economically, for one or several rooms. Priced from $37.50. Convenient payments, if desired.

Gas Radiant Heaters

For quick, cheerful heat on cool mornings and evenings, on damp days or as a booster to your furnace in exceptionally cold weather—nothing will take the place of gas radiant heaters. No doubt you will want them for several rooms so that you can have heat where you want it—when you want it.

All Advertising Audiences Come From the Newspaper Family

Because whatever else people may see or hear, they all have the daily newspaper reading habit.

EVERY advertiser talks to newspaper readers no matter what method of advertising he employs.

He may use letters or circulars to address his prospective customers.

He may employ advertising signs to catch the eye of those who walk or ride past.

He may broadcast a message to those who listen to the radio.

He may make his appeal through the columns of popular magazines.

But in every case, his advertising goes to habitual newspaper readers--to people who read the papers today and will read them again tomorrow.

Therefore, newspaper advertisers enjoy the unique advantage of reaching all who are reached by any advertising and many more whom only newspapers reach.

This obvious reason for the continued success of newspaper advertising should receive the thoughtful consideration of every merchant and manufacturer. Business is improving--particularly for those willing to look for it.

Newspaper advertising gets to everybody every day -- and gets there FIRST.

SYNOPSIS

Thomas Jefferson Randolph... now a great football prospect at famous Thorndyke University... was born of humble parents, Mom and Pop, in a little Middle West factory town where he was early renowned as a brilliant high school back, so much so that the great eastern college had lured him to its swanky halls. Tommy came home for Christmas, spent much of the time trying to polish household manners, did not return Easter, but during his summer vacation he caused a most profound sensation throughout critical Athens by flashing on that burg the very latest in sport togs, white knickers, flannels, et al. The neighbors are rather caustic but, as Mom explains it, "if you fly with fine birds you must wear fine feathers" referring to her boy's "millionaire college chums"...

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Mrs. Farrell sniffed. She picked up her basket and started out. Mom said: "And it's much better for Tommy to be playing the golf with his school chums than it is to be loafing at the pool room like most of the boys round here."

Mrs. Farrell turned quickly. "If it's my Jolee you're hinting about you can just change your tune, Miss Randolph; my Jolee is working at an honest job instead of wearing dummies in public."

"Why Miss Farrell!" Mom started to say more; but the irate Mrs. Farrell spoke again: "And as far as them millionaires is concerned I always say it's better to go around with the devil you know than the devil you don't know."

Then she walked out, swishing her skirts. Mom had not been prepared for such a show of temper.

"Never mind her," Mrs. Johnson consoled. "She's just jealous."

"Sure," Mrs. Flannigan added, "some people are that way. But I always say if everybody minded their own business they'd have enough to do. And if your Tommy wants to make a fashion-plate out of himself that's nobody's business but his own."

Mom nodded. "People don't take to dressin' around here like they do over east," she said. "They even give prizes to the best-dressed boy in the school."

"My lands!" Mrs. Flannigan gasped, "just imagine!"

Tommy's clothes attracted more attention in the town than since Loretto Grenato had run off with a show company and come back a year later to establish a profound influence upon junior feminine styles for many years to come. His was not the first knickerbocker suit but it was the first white one and he was the first to appear almost continuously in this garb. Furthermore, others of the young bloods, including some who did not go to college, also began to wear them although none of theirs had the flair of Tommy's, as they were mostly the short pants which came extra with sport suits.

It wasn't just knickers, either; for the first Sunday evening he was at home Tommy made his appearance in cream flannels and a blue coat, just like the musical comedy actors were when they used to come to the Elysium Theatre before it had been turned into a movie house. And it wasn't just the clothes he wore but the manner in which he wore them, as if there were nothing unusual about such garb and that all who did not wear them were behind the times.

"He was cut out for an actor," Mrs. Johnson told her husband. "He was cut out for a bum," the somewhat subdued Mr. Johnson corrected. It was like Mrs. Johnson always said, her husband didn't talk much but he thought a lot.

Tommy had made the town clothes-conscious without half-trying; but if the subject was moot throughout the town in general it was almost critical within the Randolph household. Pop looked agast when he first seen Tommy in his sport regalia; but before he could say anything Uncle Louie had so plainly indicated that he thought that Pop had immediately gone over to Tommy's side.

Uncle Louie was growing sour. As time had come for Tommy's return Mom had begun to hint that Uncle Louie go back to his hotel, which was hard for her to do because she knew he didn't have much money; in fact he owed a big bill at the hotel. Uncle Louie had let it be known that he would consider sharing his room with Tommy but Mom knew that would never do; then she had dropped a hint to Pete but Pete had shaken his head very firmly.

Anyhow Pete needed his rest and Uncle Louie not only snored but had to get up at night to drink hot water whenever his stomach bothered him; and Pete was also working at the garage a few hours each day and when he did get to bed after his two jobs he couldn't be bothered by Uncle Louie. Then Uncle Louie played his last card; since Pop and Pete worked on different shifts he would be willing to sleep in Pete's bed one week and on the couch in the front room the other; but Pop stepped on this in a hurry.

Sorrowfully, feeling as if she had turned out one of God's angels in disguise, Mom watched Uncle Louie go; she half-expected him back but they took him in at the hotel again, which wouldn't hurt them because they weren't half-filled anyhow; and if Al Smith got in and Uncle Louie got the postmaster's job he would pay in full for his was honest as the day was long whenever he had the money to pay.

But he was back for meals most of the time and he was there when Tommy first came in with the white knickers; he was ill-tempered anyhow because it happened to be Thursday night and that was the night Pop shaved and Mom always held supper up because she believed that the head of the house should always be served hot and Pop believed so too. The boys always respected this custom and Mom saw no reason why Uncle Louie couldn't wait a half-hour being as he had done nothing but wait all day anyhow and had nothing else to do. In fact Uncle Louie had spent most of his life waiting for something. He would never take a job like any body else—it was a big job or nothing for Uncle Louie.

So Uncle Louie was waiting near the table, which Mom had set in the dining room on account of the first night Tommy was home, when Tommy came in.

"Dinner not ready?"

"It's ready but the king isn't," Uncle Louie said tartly. "Anyhow it's supper where I come from. What kind of a monkey suit is that?"

Pop was a little puzzled, though, how to take the Father. Mom knew how he felt because it had taken her kind of sudden-like when Tommy had begun to call her Mother. It was strange but it was nice, too, and sounded very aristocratic. She could see that Pop liked it too, although he would never admit it.

Cerebrospinal Fever Is Highly Contagious

Like in Typhoid, "Carriers" Are Mainly Responsible for Spread of This Disease

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

RECENTLY I received a letter requesting me to write something about cerebrospinal fever, or "spotted fever". I am glad to do this because many confuse cerebrospinal fever with a more common disease known to the doctors as "meningitis".

Meningitis, as its name implies, is an inflammation of the membrane which covers the brain. It is more frequently encountered than cerebrospinal fever. The disease is not caused by the meningococcus germ but may come from various other germs.

For example, meningitis may be caused by the pneumococcus, the germ of pneumonia. The tubercle bacillus, the germ of tuberculosis, may be responsible. The typhoid bacillus, the germ of typhoid fever, or some other germ found in a diseased or infected system may cause meningitis.

But cerebrospinal fever is different. It is caused by the germ called "meningococcus". This organism enters the system through the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It is carried through the circulation and eventually reaches the lining of the brain and spinal cord. Here it sets up a severe inflammation.

There is another ailment of which we hear much just now: This is "Rocky mountain spotted fever," carried by a wood tick. It differs from cerebrospinal fever, but is giving our health officials great concern.

Cerebrospinal fever is a serious and often fatal disease. Fortunately, it is not as common now as it was in former years. It is highly contagious and is quickly spread from one individual to another. Children and young adults are most susceptible to it. It is especially common among persons who are housed in close and unsanitary quarters. Overexertion, unpleasant surroundings, catarrhal inflammations, lack of fresh air and sunshine are other factors that must not be overlooked in building up resistance against it.

Spread By "Carriers"
Unfortunately, cerebrospinal fever is often spread by individuals who are unaware that they harbor the germs of the disease. These persons are called "carriers" and like the carriers of typhoid fever, are a menace to the health of a community. It is even more difficult to detect a carrier of cerebrospinal fever than a carrier of typhoid fever.

Though carriers are mainly responsible for the spread of cerebrospinal fever, it is frequently transmitted by persons who really have the disease in such mild form it is not recognized. It is for this reason that medical attention is necessary for every ailment, regardless of how slight it may seem to you.

All suspected persons should be thoroughly examined for the meningococcus germ. A smear is taken from the roof of the hindmost part of the mouth. What is known as a "swab tube" is passed to the rear of the throat. This guards against the cotton swab and enables the doctor to make sure his specimen is not contaminated by other organisms in the mouth and the saliva.

If the germs are found, the patient must be isolated and receive proper attention. Victims of this disease are best treated at hospitals where all the necessary facilities for the treatment are within reach. Careful isolation of acute cases of cerebrospinal fever and the proper care of carriers, will lead to a marked decrease in the number of sufferers from this disease.

The picture, adapted from the famous play by Rose Franken, is truly an epic of the American middle class family and mothers-in-law in particular. It has a moral you will like or dislike, but it is there just the same... that mothers who love their children can prove it by keeping out of their affairs after they are married.

Wm Rogers Picks Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

EVERYBODY in town knows that Jim Hampton had married his wife on account of her dough.

She was awful rich, but she looked terrible.

Well, he'd only been married a week when he came round to the Meadowbrook club and says to the boys, "Say, I got lucky! Struck oil on my Kansas farm!"

screen career. Her spirited denunciation of the Hallams, one and all, is by far the finest scene this reviewer has seen in many a month. It is worth standing up and cheering.

Montgomery, as the ineffectual husband who finds his backbone in the right place when he springs to his wife's defense, is excellent. His portrayal of the part of Vickie will be remembered when some of his more flippant roles have long since been forgotten.

pride the Columbia studio is taking in the finished product. "Lady for a Day" appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine a few months ago under the title of "Madam Le Gimp." It was written by Damon Runyon, who has been called the "O'Henry of 1933," because of his humorous and dramatic tales of Broadway night life and its "dames and guys." There are plenty of both in this picture although it revolves mainly about "Apple Annie," a haggard, old fruit-vendor, who is transformed into a "lady for a day."

Has Two Meanings
The expression "double entendre" has the same meaning as the expression, "double meaning"—a word or phrase that can be interpreted in either of two ways, one of which is often of doubtful propriety.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation. Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be controlled. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Member N. R. A.

ADDRESS AT MONDAY CLUB WELL RECEIVED

The address given by Dr. Horace English, of the Department of Psychology of Ohio State university, before the Monday club last evening was well received. He talked on "Adolescence and Its Problems."

He said adolescence begins differently in different individuals, the chronological age is not important. The youth develops mentally, emotionally, physiologically, socially, educationally and industrially but seldom is he equally matured in these various growths. This disproportionate development is a major cause of the turmoil of youth. He is vacillating sometimes wishing to be coddled as much as a six year old, again to act with the independence of an adult.

Many interesting cases were discussed, the undersized but mentally mature boy, the large sexually mature but feeble-minded girl, the physically developed aggressive but mentally subaverage boy, the socially immature but sexually mature boy.

Dr. English expressed the opinion that the school-learning age was too high for many of these cases. They should be free to exercise what talent they have and achieve what they can. He said in scholarship they were "licked" before they began and no one could act normally with this sense of sure defeat. He also thought high schools which were originally organized for the select few would have to adjust themselves to the many who were now entering. In a survey in Cleveland, the Bing law was found to be a major cause of delinquency.

The most interest was aroused by what Dr. English termed "psychological weaning." He spoke very sympathetically of the mother whose life job had been rearing her children and who suddenly found herself out of that job and naturally clung to it. "He discussed the handicap of the over-dependent youth, a product of over-anxious mothers. He urged that every reaching out of youth for independence be encouraged. Parents constantly ask 'Can I trust my boy or girl in this or that situation?' but Dr. English suggested the key question is 'Will this experience contribute to the growth of my child?'

He concluded his lecture with the challenging question, "Do you help him grow?"

Differ in Choice of Names

The assertion of Joan Blondell, screen star, that she wishes to be known and billed as Joan Barnes, the name she acquired by marrying George Barnes, movie cameraman, not only shatters a Hollywood tradition but is a radical departure from the modern trend, which is for woman to retain her individuality and maiden name after marriage. Since Lucy Stone, famous reformer of the last century, started the fad, many celebrities have followed suit. A notable example is Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor in the Roosevelt Cabinet, who in private life is Mrs. Paul Wilson. Another is Dorothy Thompson, novelist, who has kept her maiden name through two marriages. She is Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, wife of the world-famed author. Formerly she was married to Josef Bard, of Budapest, Hungary.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 43 Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, October 24, 1933

The other day it was the "editor's" pleasure to help make a delivery of a beautiful mohair living room suite to a home in Roundtown. And while we were in that home, we remarked to the lady-of-the-house that she had a nice home. It was one of those cozy ones that makes a fellow feel at home. In other words, it was LIVABLE.

Upon returning to the store, we took time to look up our records on that family and when we noticed that they had been buying house-furnishings from us for more than 16 years and that their purchases amounted to several hundred dollars, our chest just naturally swelled out with pride to think that this store had been worthy of such a good customer. And we're goistical enough to believe that our treatment of this customer has been very satisfactory—both in service and goods—to deserve such a nice volume of business. May the good work continue!

Faith and confidence are big items in doing business. We had a good example of it just a few days ago. A resident of north-east of Roundtown came in and asked for a certain model of Estate Heatrola. We had to inform him that we were out of that number but that we would have more coming in a few days. Having faith in us, he wrote out his check in full payment and told us to send one of the Heatrolas out to his home when our shipment came in. It is evident that this man had confidence and faith in our store and in our Heatrola, or he would have withheld payment of the heater until he received it. He'll get it during the present week.

A recent purchaser of one of the newest model Estate gas ranges was in our store last week and remarked that she was highly pleased with the range, both in looks and baking qualities. Her range is made with the baking oven top on the level of the cooking top, thus providing a small work-table beside the fires. The oven is thoroughly insulated with rock-wool and the temperature is controlled with a ThermEstate. Heat in the oven is of the circulating type, just like the method used in furnace heat for the home. That's why all parts of the Estate oven are heated alike.

A lady from Kokomo, Ind., dropped in the other day and casting an eagle eye over our stock made the remark that our stock was modern and up-to-date. In fact, she seemed surprised to find such a fine stock of home furnishings in this city. Perhaps if some of our local folks would drop in when they are in the market for furniture, they might find just the article for which they have been looking.

Man alive, but it's great to snuggle down in one of our inner-spring mattresses, the kind that is used by the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus, and just relax and rest. Folks, you don't know how nice they are unless you've slept on one of them. Throw away that old hunk mattress and modernize.

They Satisfy... that says it!

Johnson Definitely to Quit NRA and Join Baruch Again

WASHINGTON — General Hugh Johnson has definitely fixed the date for his retirement.

He will await the reconvening of Congress, face the attacks—if any—that members of that body have been whispering about, and then step out. His old office with Baruch, redecorated and refurnished, is all ready for his return.

Johnson will leave voluntarily. His relations with the President are now of the very best, in fact better than they have ever been. This is the result of a long private talk the two men had in New York a few weeks ago.

There was a recent occasion, however, when Johnson was ready to call "quits." The storm broke when the President turned the administration of the oil code over to Secretary Ickes.

Johnson had borne the brunt of the terrific struggle in writing the oil code. So when the President turned its administration over to another man, and placed on the Oil Planning Committee men who had fought Johnson in the code negotiations, he felt he had lost Roosevelt's confidence.

With characteristic bluntness he went to the White House, proffered his resignation.

The President wouldn't hear of it. He patted Johnson on the back, kidded him a little, insisted that he withdraw the resignation.

This is one reason why Roosevelt recently came out for prison sentences for NRA chiselers, is now 100 per cent behind the NRA.

Vanished Hero

The fate of General Italo Balbo, famous flier, recently killed by Washington, is one of the chief subjects of discussion in the Diplomatic Corps.

His name has disappeared from the Italian press as if by a mysterious order. Not only has his name vanished, but he makes the rarest appearances in public life.

When the French Government sent a Parliamentary Mission to Italy recently, Balbo was supposed to guide the members through the Italian Air Ministry. Two hours before the visit, a curt announcement stated that General Balbo was not appearing, but that his place would be taken by his assistant.

It is traditional that Mussolini never lets anyone crowd him for the limelight.

Won and Lost

Puddler Jim Davis is back from his court ordeal telling everyone why the NRA can't possibly go over.

"I know all about the NRA," says Jim. "I found out about it when I was running the box board industry for the members of the industry for themselves. I made money for them too. But you can't make the small proprietor take wages off his own salary and put on another shipping clerk at $15 a week instead. The Blue Eagle is on its last gasp."

Jim has now been away from the Senate more than six months during which time he lost an appendix and won a lawsuit.

Secretary Roosevelt

It is not uncommon for the President to be "his own Secretary of State." F. D. R., however, has his eyes on the Treasury.

Secretary Woodin—one of Roosevelt's warmest friends—is little more than a figure head. When in Washington he sets in on financial conferences, but he carries little weight.

This is due to two reasons: (1) Woodin is not a financier; (2) his health is precarious. The President does not want to burden him. Under Secretary Dean Acheson, Continued on Page Five

AUGLAIZE-CO ASKS TROOPS

Officials Fear Bandit Gang; Men in Indiana Job Flee Toward Ohio.

LIMA, Oct. 24.—Close watch was settled over the western Ohio border today for signs of the gang of desperadoes, believed to be comprised of escaped convicts from the Michigan City, Ind., prison, which has been terrorizing Ohio and Indiana towns with a daring campaign of crime.

The latest escapade of the gunmen was staged late yesterday at Greencastle, Ind., when four desperadoes held up six employees and six customers of the Central National Bank & Trust Co., there and escaped with $17,000 in cash and $40,000 in negotiable securities.

Reports from Greencastle stated that the bandits fled eastward in an automobile with an Ohio license plate.

WATCH BORDERS

The close watch was held over the western border of the state in the belief that the desperadoes may be planning to switch their activities of crime to Ohio.

The desperadoes who staged the bank holdup at Greencastle are believed to be members of the same gang that raided the Allen-co jail here last October 12 and freed John Dillinger, 30, a suspected bank robber, after shooting down and killing Sheriff Jess L. Sarber in cold blood.

They are believed also to be the same desperadoes who staged a raid last week on a police station at Peru, Ind., and looted it of a complete arsenal of weapons.

One of the bandits who participated in the holdup of the Greencastle bank, it was reported, has been identified as Harry Pierpont, who has been named as the leader of the gang that invaded the Allen-co jail and liberated Dillinger at the cost of the life of Sheriff Sarber.

Fear was held by authorities that the desperadoes might try to storm the county jail at Wapakoneta, near here in Auglaize-co, where Fred Pierpont, a brother of Harry Pierpont, is being held.

Shot Chickens In Hay's Front Yard, Columbusite Caught

To have farm products stolen, canned goods taken from the cellar, livestock hauled away and numerous other things added to make life a lot of grief and tough luck might not be so bad. But to have a stranger come into your own front yard and shoot your chickens with a rifle is carrying things a little too far.

That's what happened to Ned Hay, well known Madison-twp. farmer, Monday evening.

A man, with two women in his automobile, stopped in front of the Hay house and calmly shot two chickens. He put them in his automobile and drove away. Fortunately members of the Hay family obtained the license number of his machine.

Deputy Sheriff Brian Custer and Bob Armstrong were called and drove to Columbus where they checked the license tag. They found the residence of the "culprit" on Hawthorne-st. and when they entered found a man, Elmer J. Coakley, dressing a chicken; one of Mr. Hay's.

Coakley was brought back to Pickaway-co and if ever a man was given a "bawling out" Coakley was. Mr. Hay declined to prosecute him but gave him fair warning of what would happen the next time.

Many Graves,
Seeks Others

List Disclosed By Mrs. King; Information Appreciated By Group.

Mrs. Orion King, chairman of Historic Spots and Revolutionary Soldiers' Graves committee of the Pickaway Plains chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has been making a record of all persons buried in Pickaway-co, who were born before 1820. She has been assisted by other members of the chapter.

Graves of 32 Revolutionary soldiers have been found, 15 of which have been marked by the local chapter; 10 more graves will be marked yet this year.

One hundred and forty graves have been located in the county of men, or wives of men who could have been Revolutionary soldiers but of whom no service record has yet been found. Many of these graves have been plowed over and the headstones piled in fence corners or used for various purposes. As the years go on more and more of these old records will be lost. Realizing this fact, the state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution has issued a request that all chapters catalogue graves in their respective counties. The work of the local chapter will be printed and a copy placed in the City library, one in the state library at Columbus and a third in the National D. A. R. library at Washington D. C.

Fearful that some cemetery or private burial ground might be overlooked and its records lost, Mrs. King urges that anyone knowing of any burial ground not listed below to please communicate with her at 148 W. High-st. or phone 1264.

Following are cemeteries from which inscriptions have been taken:

GADDIS HEADS IMMELL PROBE

Chief Appraiser To Begin Work Thursday; Kentuckian, Too, Asks Action.

Investigation into charges by Congressman Mel G. Underwood, of New Lexington, that Robert L. Immell, vice president of the Federal Land bank at Louisville, Ky., is responsible for delay in completion of loans to distressed farmers, will begin in Louisville Thursday when T. L. Gaddis, chief appraiser for the Farm Credit administration, arrives with an assistant in the Kentucky city.

The investigation is being held under orders of Henry Morganthau, Jr., governor of the Farm Credit administration, before whom Congressman Underwood, Truax and West of Ohio placed complaints against Immell and the bank as regards to carrying out the government's Farm Credit desires.

Impetus was added to the investigation when Senator M. M. Logan, of Kentucky, wired Morganthau that he would welcome the investigation to include his state as well as Ohio.

It is hoped the investigation will settle the fiery dispute between Mr. Underwood and Mr. Immell which has been raging for the past several weeks.

COUNTY ASKS HIGHWAY WORK

Trestle Style Construction of Route 22, West of Town, Asked By 'Dads.'

Pledging their support to a drive to bring about reconstruction of Federal Route 22, west of the Scioto river bridge, the Pickaway-co commissioners, Monday unanimously approved a resolution asking the work done with federal finances. The project would be completed through the state highway department.

The resolution was asked by a committee consisting of Fred C. Clark, John H. Dunlap, Sr., Clarence Helvering and Tom Gilliland. The resolution as prepared by Auditor Cliff M. White declared that the road was of the old levee type and cited that it is low and subject to floods which make it impassable part of the year. It recommended that a road of the trestle type be constructed and that all curves be eliminated.

A copy of the resolution signed by Commissioners John Hay, Ralph May and Burr Rader will be sent to proper officials.

Late Arrival Expected in Akron as Result of Poor Weather

ON WAY TO CHICAGO

Cruises Over Three States Hunting Opening

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—Jockeying for an opening in a fog bank blanketing Georgia and Alabama, the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin swerved from its direct course to Akron to cruise back and forth across South Georgia and Alabama early today before plunging northward through the heavy mists.

The Graf was sighted 50 miles north of Columbus, Ga., at 2:45 a. m. (CST) heading northward.

Passing Albany, Ga., further to the eastward at 4:30 (CST), the Graf radioed the United States Airways weather bureau at Atlanta for a report on weather conditions. The bureau reported a drop of ceiling here from 1,000 to 500 feet in two hours but an unlimited ceiling over Montgomery and Birmingham, and the dirigible swerved southward.

Apparently unable to find a hole in the clouds, the Graf then returned on an eastward course before heading north.

AKRON, Oct. 24.—Should the Graf Zeppelin, which is expected to reach its Akron landing tonight and possibly tomorrow, later, it was estimated by the Goodyear Zeppelin station here today.

Although officially scheduled to glide into the Goodyear field here between 4 and 5 p. m., the ship cannot possibly land at that time, it was said.

Only officials and newspapermen will be allowed near the ship. It was said, because the craft is inflated with hydrogen, which is highly explosive.

Key's Crew Next Foe or Buckeyes Of Ohio

Oppers Navy

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24.—Starting slowly but gaining power and ability with experience, Northwestern university's football team will invade Ohio stadium here Saturday for the Homecoming Day game against the Buckeyes.

Ohio State ended a football famine against Wildcats last year by winning, 20-6. This was the first victory a William-coached Ohio State team had won from Dick Hanley, but it was a decisive one, taken when the Buckeyes were at their peak and Northwestern will be back for revenge.

Always a colorful crew, Northwestern will put a team on the field led by five regulars from the 1932 outfit, Illie Olson and Jackie Sullivan, backs; and Al Kaval, Ed Riley, and Ed Manske, linemen. With these men as a nucleus, Hanley has built a high-spirited team with youngsters just up from the great 1932 freshman squad.

RENTNER GONE

Northwestern has lost Ernest "Pug" Rentner through graduation and George Potter, regular quarterback, through injury, but Ohio State is also without its two flashy half-backs of the 1932 campaign, Capt. Lew Hinchman and Bill Carroll.

Careened out of the Big Ten race by a surprisingly strong Iowa team, Northwestern is out now to spoil any chances the Buckeyes may have.

The Ohio State campus will be dressed as usual to greet the returning graduates. In fact, there will be more activity this week and more color to this game than any game here this year.

This will be the first Big Ten game in Columbus this season, and for the first time, Ohio State fans will have the chance to see just what the gigantic Buckeye line can do against a major opponent in Ohio Stadium.

Assistant Coach Floyd Stahl brought back an impressive report on the Northwestern team which played Indiana Saturday afternoon. Especially commendable was the kicking of Ollie Olson, the big, blond fullback for the Wildcats.

Ease Pain Now In Few Minutes

A Discovery That's Bringing Fast Relief To Millions

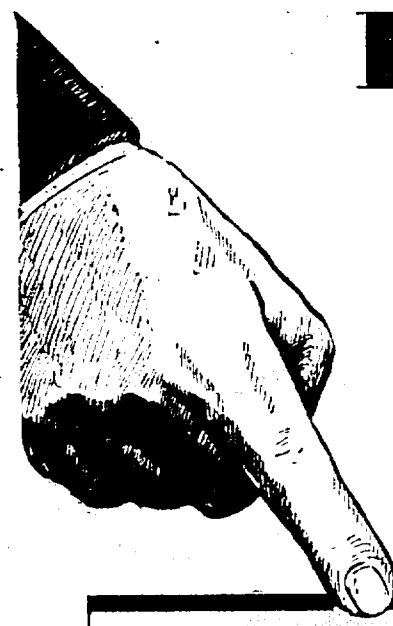

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered. Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking. The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly. When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

THAT'S MY BOY!

by FRANCIS WALLACE
AUTHOR OF "HUDDLE"

SYNOPSIS

Thomas Jefferson Randolph... now a great football prospect at famous Thorndyke University... was born of humble parents, Mom and Pop, in a little Middle West factory town where he won early renown as a brilliant high school back, so much so that the great eastern college had lured him to its swanky halls. Tommy came home for Christmas, spent much of the time trying to polish household manners, did not return Easter, but during his summer vacation he caused a most profound sensation throughout critical Athens by flashing on that burg the very latest in sport togs, white knickers, flannels, et al. The neighbors are rather caustic but, as Mom explains it, "if you fly with fine birds you must wear fine feathers" referring to her boy's "millionaire college chums"...

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Mrs. Farrell sniffed. She picked up her basket and started out. Mom said: "And it's much better for Tommy to be playing the golf with his school chums than it is to be loafing at the pool room like most of the boys round here."

Mrs. Farrell turned quickly. "If it's my Joie you're hinting about you can just change your tune, Miss Randolph; my Joie is working at an honest job instead of wearing dices in public."

"Why Miss Farrell!" Mom started to say more; but the mate Mrs. Farrell spoke again. "And as far as them millionaires is concerned I always say it's better to go around with the devil you know than the devil you don't know."

Then she walked out, swishing her skirts. Mom had not been prepared for such a show of temper.

"Never mind her," Mrs. Johnson consoled, "she's just jealous."

"Sure," Mrs. Flannigan added, "some people are that way. But I always say if everybody minded their own business they'd have enough to do. And if your Tommy wants to make a fashion-plate out of himself that's nobody's business but his own."

Mom nodded. "People don't take to dressin' around here like they do over east," she said. "They even give prizes to the best-dressed boy in the school."

"My lands!" Mrs. Flannigan gasped, "just imagine!"

Tommy's clothes attracted more attention in the town than since Loretto Grenato had run off with a show company and come back a year later to establish a profound influence upon junior feminine styles for many years to come. His was not the first knickerbocker suit, but it was the first white one and he was the first to appear almost continuously in this garb. Furthermore, others of the young bloods, including some who did not go to college, also began to wear them although none of them had the flair of Tommy's, as they were mostly the short pants which came extra with sport suits.

It wasn't just knickers, either; for the first Sunday evening he was at home Tommy made his appearance in cream flannels and a blue coat, just like the musical comedy actors wore when they used to come to the Elysium Theatre before it had been turned into a movie house. And it wasn't just the clothes he wore but the manner in which he wore them, as if there were nothing unusual about such garb and that all who did not wear them were behind the times.

"He was cut out for an actor," Mrs. Johnson told her husband.

"He was cut out for a bum," the somewhat subdued Mr. Johnson corrected. It was like Mrs. Johnson always said, her husband didn't talk much but he thought a lot.

Tommy had made the town clothes-conscious without half trying; but if the subject was moot throughout the town in general it was almost critical within the Randolph household. Pop looked agitated when he had first seen Tommy in his sport regalia; but before he could say anything Uncle Louie had so plainly indicated that he thought that Pop had immediately gone over to Tommy's side.

Uncle Louie was growing sour. As time had come for Tommy's return Mom had begun to hint that Uncle Louie go back to his hotel, which was hard for her to do because she knew he didn't have much money; in fact he owed a big bill at the hotel. Uncle Louie had let it be known that he would consider sharing his room with Tommy, but Mom knew that would never do; then she had dropped a hint to Pete but Pete had shaken his head very firmly.

Anyhow Pete needed his rest and Uncle Louie not only snored but had to get up at night to drink hot water whenever his stomach bothered him; and Pete was also working at the garage a few hours each day and when he did get to bed after his two jobs he couldn't be bothered by Uncle Louie. Then Uncle Louie played his last card; since Pop and Pete worked on different shifts he would be willing to sleep in Pete's bed one week and on the couch in the front room the other; but Pop stepped on this in a hurry.

Sorrowfully, feeling as if she had turned out one of God's angels in disguise, Mom watched Uncle Louie go; she half-expected him back but they took him in at the hotel again, which wouldn't hurt them because they weren't half-filled anyhow; and if Al Smith got in and Uncle Louie got the postmaster's job he would pay in full for he was honest as the day was long whenever he had the money to pay.

But he was back for meals most of the time and he was there when Tommy first came in with the white knickers; he was ill-tempered anyhow because it happened to be Thursday night and that was the night Pop shaved and Mom always held supper up because she believed that the head of the house should always be at the table when the vittles were served hot and Pop believed so, too. The boys always respected this custom and Mom saw no reason why Uncle Louie couldn't wait a half-hour being as he had done nothing but wait all day anyhow and had nothing else to do. In fact Uncle Louie had spent most of his life waiting for something. He would never take a job like anybody else—it was a big job or nothing for Uncle Louie.

So Uncle Louie was waiting near the table, which Mom had set in the dining room on account of the first night Tommy was home, when Tommy came in.

"Dinner not ready?"

"It's ready but the king isn't," Uncle Louie said tartly. "Anyhow it's supper where I come from. What kind of a monkey suit is that?"

Tommy looked at him kind of cold as if he were an insect. Pop's eyes liked to have popped out when he saw Tommy but before he could say anything Mom said quickly: "Everybody get ready to sit down."

Uncle Louie hurried to his seat; Tommy looked at him and Mom was afraid he was going to say something because Uncle Louie had Tommy's seat; but she looked at Tommy so he wouldn't make trouble and said:

"Here, Tommy, sit in Pete's seat."

Tommy did, and Pop came in, wearing a fresh blue shirt and looking clean and handsome like he always did whenever he shaved. He looked at Uncle Louie and said: "What's the matter with that suit?"

Uncle Louie laughed very nasty and said: "Everybody in town's talking about him. He's disgracing us."

Mom almost dropped the hot gravy bowl before she got it on the table. Tommy was drawing back from the table with those narrow eyes again; but before he could do anything Pop pounded his fist on the table so that the dishes rattled and the gravy almost pitched over the side of the dish.

"Everybody in town's been talking about them white ties of yours for forty years," Pop shouted, "and if we ain't disgraced by them we never will be."

Uncle Louie laughed sarcastic. "You should talk—with them blue shirts and running around in your sox—I suppose nobody ever talked about you."

"Here," Mom said to Pop, "be still, all of you, and have some of this grub before it gets cold."

But Pop wasn't through. Very pointedly he said, glaring at Uncle Louie: "Well, there ain't no laws forcing you to look at anything 'round here."

Quickly, Uncle Louie pushed back his chair and arose. Mom shook her head and couldn't think of anything to say. Uncle Louie shouted: "I don't have to be insulted like that by anybody. I know when I'm not wanted."

He reached for his hat, which he always had a habit of putting right under his chair, and started to walk out. He walked kind of slow; then Mom thought of something to say: "Uncle Louie, you're not going without your supper."

"Somebody's got to apologize before I come back," he stated stoutly. "I ain't used to being treated like that." He looked at Pop. Mom looked at Pop. Pop reached for the potatoes.

"You'll wait till hell freezes over," he said. Uncle Louie marched out. Mom looked at Tommy. He was smiling.

"Attaboy, Father," he said.

Pop looked up at him, smiling a little, as if he had an understanding. Mom was glad of it, even if poor Uncle Louie had to go without his supper but she would save a little food and he would probably come back after they had all gone out.

Pop was a little puzzled, though, how to take the Father. Mom knew how he felt because it had taken her kind of sudden-like when Tommy had begun to call her Mother. It was strange but it was nice, too, and sounded very aristocratic. She could see that Pop liked it too, although he would never admit it.

Cerebrospinal Fever Is Highly Contagious

Like in Typhoid, "Carriers" Are Mainly Responsible for Spread of This Disease

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

RECENTLY I received a letter requesting me to write something about cerebrospinal fever, or "spotted fever". I am glad to do this because many confuse cerebrospinal fever with a more common disease known to the doctors as "meningitis".

Meningitis, as its name implies, is an inflammation of the membrane which covers the brain. It is more frequently encountered than cerebrospinal fever. The disease is not caused by the meningococcus germ but may come from various other germs.

For example, meningitis may be caused by the pneumococcus, the germ of pneumonia. The tubercle bacillus, the germ of tuberculosis, may be responsible. The typhoid bacillus, the germ of typhoid fever, or some other germ found in a diseased or infected system may cause meningitis.

No Longer Common

But cerebrospinal fever is different. It is caused by the germ called "meningococcus". This organism enters the system through the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It is carried through the circulation and eventually reaches the lining of the brain and spinal cord. Here it sets up a severe inflammation.

There is another ailment of which we hear much just now: This is "Rocky mountain spotted fever," carried by a wood tick. It differs from cerebrospinal fever, but is giving our health officials great concern.

Cerebrospinal fever is a serious and often fatal disease. Fortunately, it is not as common now as it was in former years. It is highly contagious and is quickly spread from one individual to another. Children and young adults are most susceptible to it. It is especially common among persons who are housed in close and unsanitary quarters. Overexertion, unpleasant surroundings, catarrhal inflammations, lack of fresh air and sunshine are other factors that must not be overlooked in building up resistance against it.

Spread By "Carriers"

Unfortunately, cerebrospinal fever is often spread by individuals who are unaware that they harbor the germs of the disease. These persons are called "carriers" and like the carriers of typhoid fever, are a menace to the health of a community. It is even more difficult to detect a carrier of cerebrospinal fever than a carrier of typhoid fever.

Though carriers are mainly responsible for the spread of cerebrospinal fever, it is frequently transmitted by persons who really have the disease in such mild form it is not recognized. It is for this reason that medical attention is necessary for every ailment, regardless of how slight it may seem to you.

All suspected persons should be thoroughly examined for the meningococcus germ. A smear is taken from the roof of the hindmost part of the mouth. What is known as a "swab tube" is passed to the rear of the throat. This guards a sterile cotton swab and enables the doctor to make sure his specimen is not contaminated by other organisms in the mouth and the saliva.

If the germs are found, the patient must be isolated and receive proper attention. Victims of this disease are best treated at hospitals where all the necessary facilities for the treatment are within reach. Careful isolation of acute cases of cerebrospinal fever and the proper care of carriers, will lead to a marked decrease in the number of sufferers from this disease.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

If you have ever had family troubles you will want to see "Another Language," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature which comes to the Cliftona Theatre Wednesday and Thursday with Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery co-starring.

The picture, adapted from the famous play by Rose Franken, is truly an epic of the American middle class family and mothers-in-law in particular. It has a moral you will like or dislike, but it is there just the same—that mothers who love their children can prove it by keeping out of their affairs after they are married.

Miss Hayes, as the young wife who finds herself smothered by her husband's family, gives the most moving performance of her Louise Closser Hale, Robert Montgomery and Helen Hayes in a scene from "Another Language" coming to the Cliftona Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Don't forget Bargain Hour—6:30-7:30 P. M.

Wm Rogers Picks Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

EVERYBODY in town knows that Jim Hampton had married his wife on account of her dough.

She was awful rich, but she looked terrible. Well, he'd only been married a week when he came around to the Meadowbrook club and says to the boys, "Say, I got luck! Struck oil on my Kansas farm!"

One of his old friends stuck out his hand and says, "Too bad, old top! Only one week, too late!"

screen career. Her spirited denunciation of the Hallams, one and all, is by far the finest scene this reviewer has seen in many a month. It is worth standing up and cheering.

Montgomery, as the ineffectual husband who finds his backbone in the right place when he springs to his wife's defense, is excellent. His portrayal of the part of Viclet will be remembered when some of his more flippant roles have long since been forgotten.

AT THE GRAND

"Lady For A Day," the first picture on the Columbia Pictures schedule for the new year is now showing at the Grand Theatre. It has been heralded by all who have seen it as one of the best talkies made.

Story, adaptation, cast and direction were all of the finest quality; extra efforts were put forward by all hands and the result is said to amply justify the pride the Columbia studio is taking in the first big product.

"Lady for a Day" appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine a few months ago under the title of "Madam Le Gimp." It was written by Damar Runyon, who has been called the "O'Henry of 1933," because of his humorous and dramatic tales of Broadway night life and its "dames and guys." There are plenty of both in this picture although it revolves mainly about "Apple Annie," a haggard, old fruit-vendor, who is transformed into a "lady for a day."

Has Two Meanings

The expression "double entendre" has the same meaning as the expression, "double meaning." A word of phrase that can be interpreted in either of two ways, one of which is often of doubtful propriety.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation.

Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be controlled. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

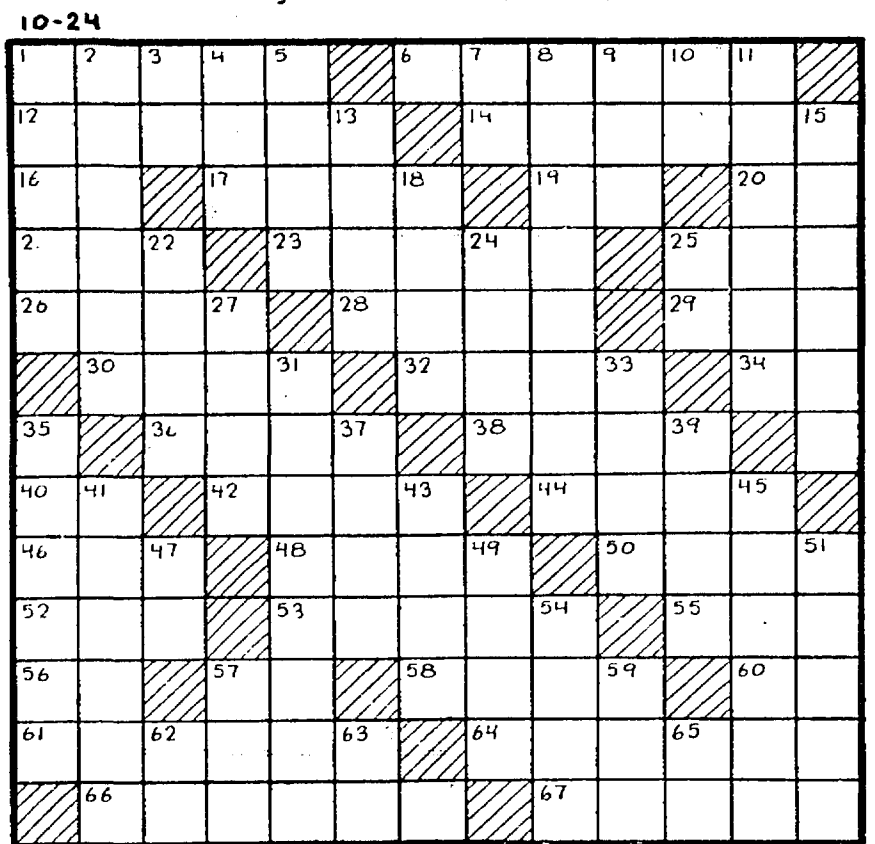

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Member N. R. A.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Home Rule Is November 7

Editors' Note:—This is the second of a series of articles by International News Service giving arguments pro and con on referendum proposals to be voted on in Ohio on Nov. 7.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24.—Under present laws each of Ohio's 88 counties is required to have a similar set-up of county offices regardless of population, but on Nov. 7 the electorate will vote on a constitutional amendment for "home rule" in county government.

Agitation for county home rule cropped up in Cuyahoga-co 15 years ago, and virtually each session of the legislature since 1917 has considered the proposal in one form or another.

Finally a County Home Rule Association was organized, with Charles P. Taft, II, Cincinnati, as chairman. It was through the association's effort in circulating initiative petitions in 1931 and 1932 that the measure was placed on the ballots.

PERMIT NOT COMPEL

The amendment would permit, but not compel, any county to change its form of government, in its opinion effect the schools, courts, county boundaries or representation in the legislature.

A committee composed of Taft, Newton D. Baker, Cleveland; Mrs. N. M. Stanley and Dr. W. O. Thompson, former president of Ohio State University, formulated arguments in favor of the amendment which were distributed by Secretary of State George S. Myers.

They found the following faults with the present uniform system:

1. It is antiquated, basically the same as in 1833 although vast changes in counties and their activities have been made.
2. There are needless offices. Counties now perform five major functions, but they have from 15 to 20 separate offices, boards and commissions.
3. Duplication. There is much wasteful duplication and overlapping of duties among county offices.
4. Counties have no responsible executive head which prevents effective financial control and encourages slipshod administration.
5. Costly uniformity. All counties, big and little, must have the same offices regardless of the differences in needs.

Under the home rule amendment, they relate, any county may frame its own plan of government.

lency, where is this place—Argentina? ... Later Jay in his inimitable stammer would say: "And the sm-m-markest of them used to think it was an i-island."

Differ in Choice of Names

The assertion of Joan Blondell, screen star, that she wishes to be known and billed as Joan Barnes, the name she acquired by marrying George Barnes, movie cameraman from the modern trend, which is for woman to retain her individuality and maiden name after marriage. Since Lucy Stone, famous reformer of the last century, started the fad, many celebrated women have followed suit. A notable example is Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor in the Roosevelt Cabinet, who in private life is Mrs. Paul Wilson. Another is Dorothy Thompson, novelist, who has kept her maiden name through two marriages. She is Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, wife of the world-famed author. Formerly she was married to Josef Bard, of Budapest, Hungary.

At least 75 per cent of the 26 million acres of land in Ohio is considered to slope enough to erode. A field with a 2 per cent slope has been found to lose as much as 12 tons of soil a year.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 43 Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, October 24, 1933

The other day it was the "editor's" pleasure to help make a delivery of a beautiful mohair living room suite to a home in Roundtown. And while we were in that home, we remarked to the lady-of-the-house that she had a nice home. It was one of those cozy ones that makes a fellow feel at home. In other words, it was LIVABLE.

Upon returning to the store, we took time to look up our records on that family and when we noticed that they had been buying house-furnishings from us for more than 16 years and that their purchases amounted to several hundred dollars, our chest just naturally swelled out with pride to think that this store had been worthy of such a good customer. And we're egotistical enough to believe that our treatment of this customer has been very satisfactory—both in service and goods—to deserve such a nice volume of business. May the good work continue!

items in doing business. We had a good example of it just a few days ago. A resident of north-east of Roundtown came in and asked for a certain model of Estate Heatrola. We had to inform him that we were out of that number but that we would have more coming in a few days. Having faith in us, he wrote out his check in full payment and told us to send one of the Heatrolas out to his home when our shipment came in. It is evident that this man had confidence and faith in our store and in our Heatrola, or he would have withheld payment of the heater until he received it. He'll get it during the present week.

A recent purchaser of one of the newest model Estate gas ranges was in our store last week and remarked that she was highly pleased with the range, both in looks and baking qualities. Her range is made with the baking oven top on the level of the cooking top, thus providing a small work-table beside the fires. The oven is thoroughly insulated with rock-wool and the temperature is controlled with a Thermastate. Heat in the oven is of the circulating type, just like the method used in furnace heat for the home. That's why all parts of the Estate oven are heated alike.

A lady from Kokomo, Ind., dropped in the other day and casting an eagle eye over our stock made the remark that our stock was modern and up-to-date. In fact, she seemed surprised to find such a fine stock of home furnishings in this city. Perhaps if some of our local folks would drop in when they are in the market for furniture, they might find just the article for which they have been looking.

Man alive, but it's great to smuggle down in one of our inner-spring mattresses, the kind that is used by the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus, and just relax and rest. Folks, you don't know how nice they are unless you've slept on one of them. Throw away that old husk mattress and modernize.

They Satisfy... that says it!
